Synopsis :

This book can be one of the most challenging tasks, especially for new researchers as they need to produce a convincing research proposal. We have heard many frustrations due to the rejection of research proposals from researchers especially those who are new in this field. Some of them are clueless of the ways to draft a strong research proposal as they thought that they have produced a strong research proposal. further, with the increasing number of research grant application each year, the chances of winning a research grant have become even more competitive, requiring even greater writing skills to present an effective case for funding.
